

Common Grounds: Brewing Bipartisanship

At the Chamber we strive to help our elected leaders find common ground to propose bold, bipartisan solutions that get our communities back to health and revive our economy.

That's why we are launching our Common Grounds event series. This initiative will bring together one Republican leader and one Democratic leader over a cup of coffee to explore important issues facing the business community and the nation. It champions bipartisan solutions and works to restore a pro-business governing majority.

The first session on Tuesday, February 23 at 11am EST features Rep. Rodney Davis (R-IL) and Rep. Seth Moulton (D-MA) in conversation with Chamber Executive Vice President and Chief Policy Officer Neil Bradley. They will be focusing on infrastructure and the road to a bipartisan legislative package, which is our top priority policy right after pandemic relief, in addition to other important topics related to business growth and economic recovery.

Our founding partner for the series is Compass Coffee, a fast-growing, proudly Washington D.C.-based coffee roaster founded by two Marines. In addition, we are also co-hosting the first session with the Neponset River Regional Chamber, which has been supporting businesses in their region since 1894.

Our take: “Now more than ever, we need leaders in both parties to pursue common ground and forge real solutions to our nation's challenges,” said Bradley. “Through the Common Grounds series, we will spotlight elected officials who demonstrate the courage to work across the aisle to get things done, and in doing so, show that civility, consensus, and bipartisan cooperation still exist in Washington.”
