

Biomanufacturing and Capabilities in Puerto Rico

- Puerto Rico has successfully created a set of capabilities and redeployed it across product types.
- Originating from the island's experience with pharmaceutical manufacturing, these capabilities are embodied in "circulating" human capital and a local ecosystem of ancillary companies.
- Efforts to diversify the island's economy should consider existing capabilities and identify opportunities for further redeployment.